

Steve Pueppke is Assistant Vice-President for Research and Director of the Office of Biobased Technologies at Michigan State University. He holds a Ph.D. in Plant Pathology from Cornell University and has worked as a researcher and research administrator both in the United States and Europe. He is a Fellow of the American Phytopathological Society and former chair of the National Agricultural Biotechnology Council. He has served on the USDA Advisory Committee on Biotechnology and 21st Century Agriculture and is a member of the Michigan Renewable Fuels Commission. Pueppke has published more than 125 refereed articles. His current professional interests include agricultural biotechnology, renewable energy, and strategy.